Gregorio Resendiz has extensive experience in the fields of financial literacy and housing management. Since childhood, he has liked math and has always been good at helping people with financial and budgeting guidance. Gregorio says that people have always told him that he is patient, excellent speaker and can explain crucial matters very clearly. These characteristics are clearly good leadership skills that Gregorio has mastered.

Being apart of the Lake County community service sector, one needs to know how to help others! Gregorio has a passion as well as the resources to give people guidance with becoming self-sufficient; assisting stable families is a major part of Gregorio's work. People with financial & housing issues, which has become very critical in most communities. The supportive natures that Gregorio has, people don't know what community benefits are available, which can be used to better serve them and overcome barriers that they may face in their homes.

One of Gregorio's most successful endeavors as a leader in the financial industry is creating and directing a financial literacy department for a major community organization, As a result, the department was able to help over 750 people each year under Gregorio's leadership and guidance.

One of Gregorio's most challenging experiences came when he was a sales consultant. Although he earned a good income. He did not understand budgeting as well as he does now. This resulted in a bout with anxiety and depression, which naturally had an adverse effect on Gregorio's family. Fortunately, he was able to endure that storm and keep moving forward due to having the professional experience in financial literacy.

Gregorio's future endeavors include continuing to teach financial literacy and helping as many people as possible become financially comfortable. Gregorio reiterates that financial fitness, much like physical fitness requires discipline, commitment and sacrifice. One of the greatest lesson that Gregorio has learned in the financial literacy industry is that it is very gratifying to help people and families develop the skills to become self-sufficient.

Gregorio holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in business administration, Basic Counseling Principles, Budgeting and Credit Counseling, Role of Credit, Collection and Debt Management, Consumer Rights and Responsibilities, Bankruptcy, skills for housing all though the NATIONAL FOUNDATION FOR CREDIT COUNSELING. Another part of my life is my family. Three daughters which are college graduates, from Lake Forest College Business Administration, Doctorate Pharmacist from Rosalind Franklin University, and the last daughter graduated as a Psychologist in Mexico.
